Dear Nathan Red,

I would like to share my sincere congratulations to Assisted Independence, LLC. for achieving Quality Assurances Accreditation. CQL | The Council on Quality and Leadership and our Board of Directors recognize this notable accomplishment and commend your agency for its hard work and dedication to systems and practices that make a positive impact on the lives of people with disabilities. The accreditation term for Assisted Independence, LLC. will extend for three years from 12/2/2022 to 12/2/2025.

This type of accreditation demonstrates that your organization has developed a strong foundation for its implementation of the Basic Assurances[®] and Personal Outcome Measures[®]. By aligning with these internationally recognized tools, Assisted Independence, LLC. is showing people supported, family members, employees, and other stakeholders that it embraces person-centered practices in human services.

As you continue to enhance the supports you provide and assess the effect that those supports are having on people's lives, please know that CQL is a trusted partner to help you along the way. Whether it's expanding your use of data, exploring additional best practices, or building upon your organization's culture, we will be offering guidance and insight to Assisted Independence, LLC. throughout your journey.

We are grateful to work with everyone from Assisted Independence, LLC. and look forward to collaborating with you more over the coming years. As I stated earlier, congratulations to you all! Assisted Independence, LLC. deserves to take some time, reflect on the achievement of Quality Assurances Accreditation, and celebrate the designation you've worked so hard to attain.

Sincerely,

Mary Kay Rizzolo
